

Week Ending Friday, July 30, 1993

Memorandum on Sales of Depleted Uranium Ammunition to Sweden

July 14, 1993

Presidential Determination No. 93-31

*Memorandum for the Secretary of State
[and] the Secretary of Defense*

Subject: Military Sales of Depleted Uranium Ammunition

Pursuant to the authority vested in me by Section 551 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1993 (Public Law No. 102-391), I hereby determine that, notwithstanding the limitations of that section of law, it is in the national security interest of the United States to allow funds provided in the above-mentioned or any other Act to be made available to facilitate the sale of M-829 depleted uranium antitank ammunition to Sweden.

You are hereby authorized and directed to transmit this determination to Congress and to arrange for its publication in the Federal Register.

William J. Clinton

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:28 p.m., July 26, 1993]

NOTE: This memorandum was published in the Federal Register on July 28. This item was not received in time for publication in the appropriate issue.

The President's Radio Address

July 24, 1993

Good morning. Six months ago this week, I took office as your President. And together we dedicated ourselves to fulfilling a vision of change for our country, change that would set us firmly on the path to growth, to progress and prosperity based on some old-fashioned principles and some new ideas.

The principles are that we all ought to be able to take more responsibility for ourselves, our families, and our neighbors; that we ought to have more opportunity in this country; and that together we can make a stronger American community so that all of us as individuals can do better.

We decided to begin with an economic plan which puts aside trickle-down economics and emphasizes bringing down this deficit and investing in our people and our economy; to be followed by an effort to control health care costs and provide affordable health care to all Americans; a welfare reform plan to move people from welfare to work; the national service program to open the doors of college education to millions of young people and give many, many of them a chance to pay their college loans back through service to their communities; a tougher crime bill; and a bill to reform the political system itself, to reduce the influence of big money and lobbyists and to open the process to the influence of ordinary people.

We're making progress on all these efforts, but for the centerpiece, the economic plan, the moment of truth is almost at hand. Lawmakers on Capitol Hill are working on a final version of our budget plan, and in the next couple of weeks when your Senators and Representatives vote on this plan, they will determine whether we will reduce the deficit, rebuild our economy, and recharge our job-creating machine.

This morning I want to talk to you again about that plan and the new jobs it will create. This is our historic opportunity for getting our economic house in order. If we pass the plan, we'll be on the way to reducing the deficit by $500 billion over the next 5 years, to putting millions more Americans to work, and providing middle class Americans and businesses with the tools they need to compete and win in the global economy.